

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

The self-powered electrical generator is composed of components that are of current technology that I have arranged so that this new type of electrical generator does not require a secondary substance, power source, or the forces of nature to function. In addition, the unit is self-sustaining for indefinite periods of time. I have duplexed the components into full functioning sets to prolong the life of the components and to allow for the possibility of maintenance without interruption of service.